

School Information

Southern Health School (SHS)

Maximum appointees: Five

SHS serves the whole of Te Wai Pounamu/ The South Island, with its administrative centre located in Ōtautahi / Christchurch. The kura provides adaptable education services designed to meet the diverse learning needs of school-aged ākonga whose health conditions prevent them from attending their regular schools for an extended period. The kura also supports their return to education when the ākonga's health permits. For more details, please visit the Southern Health School website (<https://www.southernhealth.school.nz>).

In addition to the general requirements for all positions, applicants for the CRHS board must have:

- A strong understanding of the intersections between health, education, and the welfare system, along with their impact on students.
- Experience or knowledge in the areas of health, mental health, and/or social sectors.
- A commitment to engaging with marginalised communities at the intersection of health and education

Central Regional Health School (CRHS)

Maximum appointees: Five

CRHS serves the lower North Island, with its administrative centre located in Wellington. The school provides adaptable education services designed to meet the diverse learning needs of school-aged students whose health conditions prevent them from attending their regular schools. Additionally, CRHS delivers educational support to students residing in Oranga Tamariki youth justice and care and protection residences within the region. For more details, please visit Central Regional Health School \(crhs.school.nz\)

In addition to the general requirements for all positions, applicants for the CRHS board must have:

- A strong understanding of the intersections between health, education, and the welfare system, along with their impact on students.
- Experience or knowledge in the areas of health, mental health, and/or social sectors.
- A commitment to engaging with marginalised communities at the intersection of health and education

Northern Health School (NHS)

Maximum appointees: Five

NHS serves the North Island, from Tūrangi to North Cape, including Gisborne and New Plymouth. Its administrative centre is located in Auckland. The school provides adaptable education services designed to meet the diverse learning needs of school-aged students whose health conditions prevent them from attending their regular schools. NHS comprises 21 different units and has an average roll of 1700 and an annual throughput of 3000. For more details, please visit Northern Health School \(nhs.school.nz\).

In addition to the general requirements for all positions, applicants for the NHS board must have:

- A strong understanding of the intersections between health, education, and the welfare system, along with their impact on students.
- Experience or knowledge in the areas of health, mental health, and/or social sectors.
- A commitment to engaging with marginalised communities at the intersection of health and education

Kingslea School

Maximum appointees: Two

Kingslea School is a specialist composite school (ages 7-19 years) operating across eight campuses nationwide. These include four youth justice residences, one care and protection residence, and three community campuses for rangatahi on the edge of care.

Our youth justice residences serve the top 1-2% of youth offenders in Aotearoa, with stays ranging from 4-6 months although the average stay is less than 40 days. Classrooms cater to a wide range of abilities, from below NZC Level 1 to NCEA Level 3. For many, this is their last chance to engage in education.

We focus on creating safe, predictable environments that help our ākonga feel secure, self-regulate, and reconnect with learning, fulfilling our vision: 'Rediscover the magic of learning.'